

CONFORMAL COATING MASKING TAPES

Technical Overview

Conformal coating solutions made easy

Are your conformal coating masking tapes working well on your production line?

Our range of conformal coating masking tapes provide an ideal solution for conformal coating masking.

These specialist masking materials are used in our own global coating services and are a tried and tested solution.

Why use our masking tapes?

SCH Technologies have tried and tested a lot of different masking tapes over a long period of time.

We found that many tapes have problems being used for conformal coating processing and these issues included:

- Reacting in an adverse way with the conformal coatings
- Leaving adhesive residues when removed
- Allowing bleeding and leaking under the tape of the conformal coating
- Not staying sealed for long enough during processing
- Tearing when removed from the circuit board

Therefore, we identified the best tapes for the conformal coating process that avoided these problems, were relatively easy to use and were sensibly priced.

We now offer these tapes to customers to use in their own conformal coating production line.
